Workforce and Education Council

A region's economic competitiveness, growth and vitality are intrinsically tied to educational attainment and the quality of its workforce. Our region's low college attendance and completion rates constitute a fundamental weakness in our economic infrastructure and is an indicator of regional economic vulnerability. In response to this need, IEEP established the Education Council to meet our region's educational and workforce challenges. The council is dedicated to improve public education, expand access to higher education and develop a workforce capable of competing in a global economy.
